Golda: Bureaucracy weakening the nation

By DAVID LANDAU, Jerusalem Post Reporter

Prime Minister Golda Meir yesterday called on civil servants and other public utility employees to do what they are paid to do - sarve the public courteously and efficiently. Mrs. Meir told hundreds of top Government administrators attending the twelfth national convention on public administration at the Hebrew Uni-versity that administrative sloth and indifference are weakening the pation from mithin

versity that administrative sloth and indifference are weakening the nation from within — just when we need maximum strength and effort to face problems at home and abroad. "A 'yes' inexplicably delayed for frustrating weeks and months is more aggravating than an outright 'no'," the Prime Minister declared. "It is the normal and regular thing in this country for people to be turned away and told 'come back tomorrow, or next week,' when a hitle effort by the clerk or official concerned could take care of the problem on the spot. "It is a tragedy that some young couples, just out of the army

"It is a tragedy that some young couples, just out of the army and wanting to marry and settle down, cannot find a home or raise a mortgage. But it is much worse that couples who have been approved for a mortgage have to spend six months running around to obtain it," ahe said. The Drime Monitor guardiance has and improved her audience hy

The Prime Minister surprised and impressed her audience by her detailed knowledge of how our bureaucrats, clerks and other public servants carry out their duties. "Some years ago, I visited a friend in hospital. I arrived outside visiting hours, and asked the man at the information desk if I could go up to my friend. He did not look up. I asked again and again, and eventually he said, 'Do whatever you like.' I went up. 'When I came down he apologized profusely that he had not recognized me. I'm not insulted,' I said, 'but why does someone have to be well-known and recognized before you lift your head up to speak to them?" she asked. Mrs. Meir said ahe was pleased to read in the press that a bus driver was heavily fined for rudeness to a passenger who asked why he was late. "What's he there for?" she asked. "To serve "With us," said the Premier, "they put a man behind a desk or a window to deal with the public and he's often amazed by the fact that members of the public actually come to disturb him."

Senator Javits told the Senate he hopes a favourable decision will be made soon "since the U.S. should in no way make any concession to the unbelievable apartheid policies of racial segregation now being followed as government policy in South Africa."

And, the most interesting line of all, what did it really matter so long as the Amer-icar scrept Us eign policy? ured in satt As Against this background Washington was confronted last week with a spate of comment diagnosing the ills of Foggy Bottom. The State Department is sick, some say dying," one long article in the "Evening Star" began. "Morale has never been lower," said former Under-Secretary of State George Ball. Conversation with junior and middle-level foreign service officers yielded a concensus of mjuri frustration at playing a marginal role in the forsign policy machinery.

It was not only the overshadowing of Rogers in China that had dramatized a process which observers have noted since the advant of the Nixon Administration. Nor was it the implied rebuff given to Rogers when his one major area of operation — the Middle East — was shunted back to the White House when it came to a critical decision. The issue is not of per-sonalities, but of competing bureaucracies.

Every President in the nuclear age, and be-fore, has had complaints about the "inefficien-cy," "political sympathies" and "unreliability" of the State Department. All have had smbi-tious plans to reorganize the "fudge factory." But President Nixon did something about it by by-passing the State Department, revitalizing the National Security Council within the White House and giving it a totally new role. Dr. Kissinger's real power derives from his role as executor of the Nixon reform.

When Rogers was chosen to be Secretary of State the full degree of the White House take-over may not have been clear. But the general intent certainly must have been. So whatever Rogers is a sensitive man - he did not take the job with too many illusions.

Having noted these points it is worth em-phasizing that, personalities uside, the State Department still plays a role, even if not the role in foreign policy. The Middle East is a classic example where it may be too early to write off the State Department.

Cartainly the Rogers foreign policy report to Congress last week does not echo the Rogers of 1969. There can be little doubt also that in recent months the direction of Middle East policy has been given much more specifically from the White House. And discussion at the Moscow summit will be handled at the White House

But if any kind of settlement is to be reached it is going to mean day-to-day diplomacy. That will not be handlad by a Henry Kissinger but by a Joseph Sisco, regardless of the partisan nature of the Administration. If President Nixon is replaced by a Democrat it is reason able to assume that the basic system will be retained. It has served this President well.

But by its very nature even an expanded Na tional Security Council system has a special scope. It works at three diffrent levels: ahap-ing the broad philosophical guidelines for po-licy; crisis management; and the channelling of the input from the other "bureaucracies," State, Defence, Commerce, etc.

Day-to-day dealings with other governments are still carried on through the State Department and for all the obvious weaknesses inherent in a foreign service system nobody has yet come up with an alternative. Old hands at Foggy Bottom who have read the obituaries before read them again this week back to the cables.

one-party state in which virtually total power belongs to a single person, Mrs. Indirs. Gandhi.

By her triumph in the National elections last year Mrs. Gaudhi es-tablished total authority over her party, either eliminating the members of the old guard, who had their own seats of regional power, or taming them.

Now Mrs. Gandhi has eliminated from the perliamentary system both national and regional opportion to her outside her party.

Not even Mahatma Gazdhi or her father, Jawaharlal Nehru had this power. Six years ago Mrs. Gandhi was chosen by "kingmaker" Romaraswamy Kamaraj and by the State bosses because they thought they could control her.

In 1970 she broke away from those who thought she would be a puppet on their strings. After running a precatious government that surviv-ed with the votes of the Communist Party and other leftists, she called a surprise election and won with the slogan "Garibt Hatao" (Out with poverty).

Publishers want money back from Irving

NEW YORK (Reuter). - Lawyers for the McGraw-Hill publishing house will shortly try to recover from author Chifford Irving about 170m author (innot inving zoon) $900,000, the sum the Howard Hughes autobiography hoaz cost the company, a spokesman for the finn said here on Monday hight. Trving, 41, his 37-year-old wife Edith and researcher Richard Suskind pleaded guilty on Monday to State and Federal charges of conspiracy and grand larceny.

The Irvings pleaded guilty to con-spinary charges in a Federal court and the prosecution dropped an-other charge of mail fraud. All three then pleaded guilty in the Manhattan Supreme Court to grand tarceny and conspiracy alorges. Meanwhile, Ted Weber, of Mo Graw-Hill, the firm which originally intended to publish the book, said he intended to recover the 900,000.

The costs

The costs broke down as follows: A total of $850,000 meant for Hughes, which was withdrawn from a Swiss bank by Mrs. Irving, who used a false Swizs passport to pose as Helga Hughes and endorse the cheque; $115,000 advanced to Irving to work on the book and paid out as expenses; about $150,000 spent by McGraw-Hill in legal expenses, typesetting costs and other expense

Mr. Weber said that so far about $450,000 had been found in the Swiss bank account where Mrs. Irving redeposited the $650,000 but sources close to the Irvings have maintained the couple kept the money intact.

Irving, his wife and Suskind are reported to be working on a deal with another publishing firm to write a book about the Hughes boar.

Extensive bargaining

Monday's court appearance brought the first public statement by irving that his book on the 66year-old industrialist was a fabribation based on research in public ilbraries and a manuscript pirated from a former Hughes aide, Noah Diebrich.

Extensive bargaining is believed to have preceded the guilty pleas, but yesterday the nature of these deals still remained unclear.

Federal judge John Cannella told the couple on Monday: "There might be jail sentences or there might not be." He said he would make no promises.

Speculation centred on Mrs. Irving, since she faces a March 26 extradition hearing in a Federal court. She has been charged in Switzerland - In connection with her bank dealings - with embezzie-ment, counterfeiting and forgery.

WHEN David M. Blumberg, the new World President of B'nai Brith, calls on the Pope this week on his way home to the U.S. from Israel he will bring His Holiness greetings from the Sisters of Mercy and from the St. Mary's Hospital which they run in his home-town, Knoxville, Tennessee, Mr. Blumberg is President of the Board of St. Mary's, and also a member of the Board of Regents of the Sisters of Mercy. Before he joined the Board of Regent's, the nuns asked the local Cardinal for permission to co-opt him - not because he is a Jew, but because he is a Mason. "Thirty-third degree," Mr. Blumberg says proudly flashing the 33rd degree ring which is a top honour in Masonic life,

The cardinal approved his co-option despite his Masonic allegiance: "But I think I'll take the ring off for my audience with the Pope," he says.

The visit to the Pope on the way ome, and the visit Mr. Blumberg's party made to German Chancelle Willy Brandt on the way to Israel signify the importance world leaders attach to B'nai Brith. Founded in New York as a friendly society of German Jews 128 years ago (it was originally called "Bindesbrider") not going to stop in Mattapan.

Bnai Brith now has 1,586 men's lodges and 1,200 women's chapters in 46 countries. Its membership is well over half a million and there are another half a million students belonging to the Hillel Organiza-tion which B'asi Brith sponsors.

It is sad to think that American Jewry has had to wait so long for a woman to be ordained a rabbi. The American Republic began with a political, if not a social, revolution. The impact of that revolution throughout the world was tremendous, The generation of 1776 knew that it was ushering in a new world. Look at the back of the dollar bill. at the Latin phrase under the pyramid: "The new order of the ages." Some seventy-five years later there was a religious "break-through": the Protestants ordained a woman. Now, a hundred and nineteen years later. the Reform Jews are about to see Saily Priesand ordained a rabbi. Galileo was right: the earth dors move - but sometimes it moves very very slowly. Will Rabbi Sally get a job, and will she be successful? There is not (Jacob R. Marcus is director of the American Jawish Archives).

Stand-fast SHEMTOV: Nothing done to get pupils see eligious girls to enlist Mrs. Meir

By ASHER WALLFISH, Jerusalem Post Knesset Reporter Health Minister Victor Shemtov told the Knesset yesterday that ; months had passed since the Cabinet had approved a volunteer alth, education, social services and welfare. Yet thousands of irses and other paramedical staff are still lacking. Orthodox girls could attend hosvheme to enlist orthodox girls in various essential services - tals during the day as volunteens, d return home to their families the evening, Mr. Shemtoy said. vever, they don't, he added. Mr. Shemtov was susaming up the hate on the work of his Ministry er the year, within the frameork of the budget survey. He noted the slarming increase ivenenest disease reported saying at the most worrisoms rise was mong teensgers in the 15-17 age youp, at this blight is to be coun-red among the youth high schools ive to carry sex education proammes, he said.

Also on the subject of VD, he ggested considering the idea of gistration and medical obeck-ups prostitutes.

Mr. Shemtov believed that the besont Knesset (which dissolves in in a mmer of 1978) would pass the in a stionel Health Insurance Law. One is the key advantages this would be the key advantages this would ive, he said, would be to emable livery petient to get hospital treat-timent in his own immediate area, no stier what fund he was & memar of, or the organization which been approved in principle for the site by the local planning committee, disagreement over its proposed design has held up the project for more than a year.

City Engineer Amikam Yaffe said that the required permit for destruction of the wing had not been requested. Destroying it now was not only illegal, he said, but would leave a "bald spot" on the landscape until the hotel is built.

Architect David Resnik, who is designing the hotel, last night accused the Municipality of dragging out the project insufferably after initially encouraging the investor, Simon Peres of Spain. Four plans for the site have been rejected and he is now to submit a fifth version. Mr. Resnik said he didn't know who had ordered the bulldozing. Mr. Peres could not be reached.

The plans call for a 130-room luxury hotel on the site of the south wing of the former hospital. The older north wing, built by the Knights of St. John order in 1912 as an eye hospital, is to be preserved, its interior renovated for use as a restaurant and for shops.

Road building crew makes wrong turn

By ZEEV SCHUL, Jerusalem Post Military Correspondent TEL AVIV. - A steam roller, three Israeli citizens and an oversized truck and towing platform were all returned from across the Lebanese border at Rosh Hanikra yesterday. They had crossed the border three days earlier inadvertently. It all began on Sunday, when the truck, the steam roller and its crew showed up at the Rosh Hanikra border point and inquired as to the whereabouts of Labouna village (near Rosh Hanikra, inside Israel).

The equipment belonged to a Hadera contractor. The driver and his assistants were Arabs from Faradis village in Central Galilee, and the steam roller operator a Jew from Hadera.

The frontier guards told them to back up and take some other turning. They must have misunderstood the instructions and when the frontier barrier was raised to let the truck reverse, they drove instead straight on all the way to the next road barrier, some three kilometres further to the North.

Some three knometres further to the North. The Arabic-speaking driver had a long argument with some soldiers who wouldn't let him pass. The shouting went on for some time. Eventually when the second barrier was raised, the men in the truck realized that they had just driven into the Lebanon.

None the worse for their experience the three were returned home yesterday.

They told police interrogators that they were detained by the Lebanese Army and "very well treated."

The settlers have been fighting for their seven-man elected committee to be given local authority status.

Eshkol made Jordan River the border'

Jerusaiem Post Reporter Levi Eshkol laid down that the Jordan River is Israel's defence border - which means that neither the Jordanian Army nor any other for-eign army may cross it," Mr. Israel Galili, Minister without Portfolio, told the 12th Convention on Public Administration in Jerussiem yesterday. He was speaking at the award of the Eshkol Prize. Eshkol gave voice to several policy principles whose influence remains with us to this day, Mr. Galin said. One of them is that without peace there should be no withdrawal. He had opposed fixing frontiers that would include a majority of the Arab population within the Israel State. Yet Eshkol believed that Israel's old borders should be changed .
